

The Data of the heart

The data of the heart
Do not conveniently compute
Nor lend themselves to strict statistical analysis.
If I have loved three times,
And then once more,
And lost all four,
How does that compare
With three of your discarded dreams?
And should we each succumb
Along divergent paths
Which of us
On a Richter scale
Will register more dead?